CORNELIA LEIGHTON

Dedication — 1964

Briscoe has been a school for ninety years. As a result of the building of a new Beverly High School, she will be obsolete by next year. Not long after that, undoubtedly, she will be torn down and replaced by a bright and modern edifice. But we feel that Briscoe is somehow more than just a building or a name. She has been many things to the scores of people who have contributed to her history through the years. To Miss Hannah Rantoul, Briscoe was the result of her generous gift of land to the town of Beverly in the year eighteen seventy-three. The town was so grateful for the land that by the next year, Briscoe's first building was completed. An account in the building committee's report describes Briscoe as a "building with some pretensions to architectural beauty . . . a building with many modern conveniences."

On a hot, humid day in eighteen seventy-five a large gathering of people turned out for the dedication of Briscoe. In her small hall these people sat, filled with a deep sense of satisfaction, appreciation, and pride, listening to the elaborate yet meaningful speeches about Beverly's school heritage. To them, Briscoe was a reflection of their town's regard for the education of their sons and daughters — "a school of which any city could be justly proud."

In the expanse of time from then to now, many things have changed. Briscoe is no longer thought of as a modern structure or even an impressive building. Yet Briscoe still satisfies our needs. We appreciate all that has been offered us here — the fruits of many years of experience passed down from generation to generation. And we realize now that the qualities which we acquired during our brief stay at Briscoe — honor, integrity, and self-confidence — are just as much a part of the curriculum as English or Math. In nineteen twenty-eight Marjory Sennet verbalized the feelings of classes before and after her with these words:

Here's to dear old Briscoe,
Our hearts are thine.
Always we'll cherish,
Honor and with loyalty
We'll serve thee ever —
"Play the game fair" is our motto,
We'll guard it well —
Hail, hail to Briscoe,
Our beloved school

With these words in mind, the four principals of Briscoe — Mr. James Cronin, Mr. Leslie Jones, Mr. William Foley, and Mr. Chester Battis have guided our school. Mr. Cronin was Briscoe Junior High's first principal. He was very much respected and admired by his students, a man of action, devoted to his school. He felt that the key to success was hard work and persistent effort. After being principal for fourteen years he was replaced in nineteen thirty-eight by Mr. Leslie Jones. Educated at Boston University, and Harvard, he began teaching at Beverly High School in nineteen twenty-five. During his stay at Briscoe he saw many changes take place in Briscoe. The curriculum became much more difficult and the standards more rigid. Mr. Jones feels "that because Briscoe students are so easy to teach, they will always be good students." In nineteen fifty-four a new Junior High School opened up and was in need of a leader. Mr. Jones answered the call and was replaced by Mr. William Foley. He in turn was replaced in nineteen fifty-seven after a stay of four years. Mr. Battis has been principal since then. He taught from nineteen forty-four to nineteen fifty-four at Briscoe, and was principal at Upton Elementary School for three years. He attended Tufts, Boston University, Harvard Graduate school, and Salem Teacher's College. Mr. Battis feels that "Briscoe students always were the finest people and always will be the finest".

This year David Bois expressed the sentiments of generations of students with the following lyrics to the Class of 1964 song:

Dear Briscoe, we are leaving but we will remember
The joys we have had here, the people we've met.
Three years now are behind us, no more will we share September.
And all we have gained here, we shall not forget.
The spirit we have now will never, never fail us.
The challenges we faced here we'll never regret.
Our last look we are taking, we stay here no longer.
But, Briscoe, we will always remain in your debt.

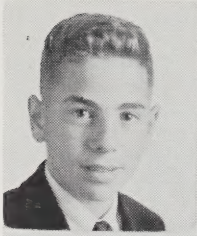

Briscoe and its leaders have served us all faithfully over the years. Although the building can no longer claim "pretensions to architectural beauty" the pride in our Briscoe has remained and the spirit that lies behind that pride has grown in strength. Briscoe Briefs wishes to salute that spirit and the men who have helped it. Thus we dedicate the nineteen sixty-four issue of Briefs to Mr. James Cronin, Mr. William Foley, Mr. Leslie Jones, Mr. Chester Battis, and to BRISCOE.

Class Officers

RICHARD CONRAD, President

Richard entered his role as ninth grade class president with a long line of experience as an officer behind him. In the seventh grade he was his homeroom secretary; in the eighth grade, homeroom vice president; and in the ninth grade, homeroom treasurer. And for two years Richard has been a Student Council member. Richard's other activities have included membership on the basketball team, participation in the Christmas Assembly and the Debate this year, and membership on the Bulletin Board Committee. Richard hopes to become a machine drafter and enjoys fishing as a hobby.

JEFFREY AUSTIN, Vice President

A busy Briscoe student since he entered the seventh grade, Jeff's activities include eighth grade homeroom presidency and membership on the Eighth Grade Executive Committee, homeroom vice presidency in the ninth grade as well as membership on the Student Council, three years of Band and Baseball, and two years of Basketball. An excellent student, Jeff has not yet decided into what career he will direct his scholarship. But Jeff has no doubts about his favorite hobbies — baseball and basketball.

DOROTHY LECOUTER, Secretary

Dottie, a vivacious ninth grader enrolled in the Junior Business Training Course, has been getting some good practice for her future career as a secretary. In the ninth grade she has served both as secretary of her homeroom and of the class of 1964. At Briscoe Dottie has participated in several plays, and, outside of school, she is kept busy with the Tri-Hi-Y and Saint Mary's Drum Corps.

LINDA MERCALDI, Treasurer

One of the busiest students at Briscoe is Linda. As a seventh grader, Linda participated in the spelling bee assembly and served as her homeroom's secretary. In the eighth grade Linda became a cheerleader, an office aide, and a library assistant, and she has continued all these activities this year. As head cheerleader, Linda has proved to be a fine example of Briscoe spirit. Serving as class treasurer certainly follows Linda's interests, for she hopes someday to become a math teacher. Linda names swimming as her favorite form of recreation.

Briscoe Keys

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Briscoe Student Council consists of the five Briscoe Keys, and the President and Student Council Representative of each homeroom. The Keys were outstanding eighth grade pupils who were first nominated by the faculty and then elected by the student body to serve as the nucleus of the Student Council. The pupil who receives the most votes becomes the Master Key and President of the Student Council. Under the direction of the faculty advisor, Mr. Gilbeard, the Keys have led the Council in a number of projects to benefit the school.

SANDRA PIERCE, Master Key

Sandra Pierce is this year's holder of the coveted Master Key. As holder of this key Sandy holds the position of President of the Student Council. Although the teachers select the Keys, it is the student body which elects its leader, the Master Key.

President of the ninth grade Student Council is not the only job held by Sandy; she has been one of the most active students Briscoe has had in a long time. In the seventh grade, Sandy was on the Briscoe Briefs staff and was her homeroom Secretary. In the eighth grade she was her homeroom Student Council Representative, a science assistant, a member of the traffic patrol, and WGBH correspondent. In the ninth grade, Sandy has been a Guidance Aide, a member of traffic patrol, and a talented member of the Briscoe Briefs art staff.

Sandy attended the Cove-Montserrat School before coming to Briscoe. She plans to go to college and then to become a teacher of mentally retarded children. Sandy's hobbies are swimming and reading.

CAROLYN HAYNES, Scholarship

The honor of holding a Key is tremendous, but holding the Scholastic Key is that honor and more; for, the holder of that Key is top amongst the smartest students at Briscoe.

Because Carolyn is a Key holder, she is on the Student Council. The members of the Council showed a great trust in Carolyn and elected her Treasurer of the Council. This is not the only office Carolyn has held during her years at Briscoe. She was on the seventh grade "Brevities" staff, an eighth grade Science Assistant, and during this last year has been a member of the "Brevities" staff, a Guidance Aide, a Science Assistant, and a member of the traffic patrol.

Before coming to Briscoe, Carolyn went to the Cove-Montserrat School. Because she plans to go to college she is taking the college preparatory course in which her favorite subjects are Algebra and German. Along with all this work, Carolyn finds time for skiing, reading, and tennis. She plans to teach either English or Algebra some day.

PAUL MCFADDEN, Activities

This year's holder of the Activities Key is also the Vice President of the Student Council. Through the years Paul has been very active. In the seventh grade he was vice-president of his homeroom. In the eighth grade he was in the science countdown and was on the baseball team. This year Paul added another sport, football, to his activities, and he was also a member of the traffic squad.

He is taking the college course with French as a major subject, and he names English as his favorite subject. Paul's hobbies are sports and Beethoven.

PETER O'BEIRNE, Friendship

Peter is and has been an active student at Briscoe. In the seventh grade he was his homeroom president and was vice president of the Seventh Grade Student Council. In the eighth grade he was president of his homeroom once again and also was a member of the traffic squad and the football team. Besides being active in Student Council this year, Peter has participated in many assemblies and acted as M.C. of the Hootenany.

Peter is taking the college preparatory course with science and social studies as his favorite subjects. He hopes to continue this course and some day become a lawyer. Playing football and playing the horn are among Peter's hobbies.

GEORGE HARDISON, Fair Play

The Fair Play Key is the Key which Briscoe stands for. Through Briscoe's history, there always has been fair play in whatever has been done here. George Hardison represents that fine tradition.

George has upheld Fair Play in his many activities, among which are: member of the band for all three years, member of the chorus, and staff member of the "Brevities."

George is taking the college preparatory course with science and algebra as his favorite subjects. Playing the clarinet, collecting coins, and fishing are George's favorite hobbies.

Student Aides

LIBRARIANS

Mrs. Eberly has had a new batch of eager librarians this year. Helping as much as they could and doing a fine job of it, were the staff pictured on the opposite page. They all help check books in and out, write overdue notices, file cards, cover books, write new cards, and keep the library neat and in order.

— MARJORIE DAVIS, 8-2

GUIDANCE AIDES

The Guidance Aides have done an excellent job filing new material, organizing vocational files, putting in order college catalogues, and taking care of mail concerning various vocations. Karen Brindle, Sandra Pierce, and Carolyn Haynes have never been idle at their jobs. Every free minute they had was spent helping the counselors — sometimes they would even stay after school to help. The students of Briscoe should be proud to have such ambitious students as these at our school.

CAFETERIA WORKERS

The Cafeteria workers have done a good job this year under the direction of Mrs. O'Bear. With William Amore, Charles Liporto, and Alan Wilkins seeing to it that the trays, dishes, silverware, and milk were available, how could they go wrong? Also in the kitchen were Kathy Sheehan and Wendy Thomas who supplied the counter needs. And doing more than their share at the cash registers were Susan Bradley, Sally Burrow, Cathy Thompson, and Joanne Wiederhorn.

OFFICE AIDES

Anita Blamchette, Roberta Brooks, Peggy Manning, and Kathy Powers have been the main helpers in the office. They spent their time filing and checking records, answering the telephone and switchboard, sending out special notices and bulletins, and doing general errands.

— MARJORIE DAVIS, 8-2

TRAFFIC SQUAD

This year's Traffic Squad, consisting of Tom Bartlett, Dick Conrad, Ken Cormier, Jan Dyer, Jean Gendron, George Hardison, Carolyn Haynes, Paul McFadden, Allen Morris, Peter O'Beirne, Danny Peterson, Sandra Pierce, Kathy Powers, Mary Wells, and Cindy Wilbur, have done a fine job of keeping order in the corridors, on the stairs, and, of course, at the fountains.

GIRLS' CHORUS

The Girls' Chorus, under the direction of Mr. John Finnegan, is composed of twenty-three eighth and ninth grade girls. They have weekly rehearsals, and occasionally they rehearse after school.

The Chorus has performed at the following assemblies throughout the year: Thanksgiving Day Assembly, Christmas Assembly, and the Memorial Day Assembly. At the beginning of May they took part in the Spring Concert. Among the soloists at these performances were Ann Burridge and Christine Morgan.

Both Mr. Finnegan and the members of the Chorus were, with good reason, most enthusiastic about the Chorus.

BRISCOE BAND

The Briscoe Band, also under the direction of Mr. John Finnegan, consists of talented Briscoe students who have performed in several programs this year. During the school day the band has performed at such assemblies as the Christmas Assembly and the Memorial Day Assembly. Last winter the Band entertained Briscoe parents at the first meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association. This Spring the Band played several selections at the Spring Concert. These concerts have been made possible by the hard work of the band members who practiced weekly under the baton of Mr. Finnegan.

GIRLS' CHORUS

The Girls' Chorus, under the direction of Mr. John Finnegan, is composed of twenty-three eighth and ninth grade girls. They have weekly rehearsals, and occasionally they rehearse after school.

The Chorus has performed at the following assemblies throughout the year: Thanksgiving Day Assembly, Christmas Assembly, and the Memorial Day Assembly. At the beginning of May they took part in the Spring Concert. Among the soloists at these performances were Ann Burrige and Christine Morgan.

Both Mr. Finnegan and the members of the Chorus were, with good reason, most enthusiastic about the Chorus.

BRISCOE BAND

The Briscoe Band, also under the direction of Mr. John Finnegan, consists of talented Briscoe students who have performed in several programs this year. During the school day the band has performed at such assemblies as the Christmas Assembly and the Memorial Day Assembly. Last winter the Band entertained Briscoe parents at the first meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association. This Spring the Band played several selections at the Spring Concert. These concerts have been made possible by the hard work of the band members who practiced weekly under the baton of Mr. Finnegan.

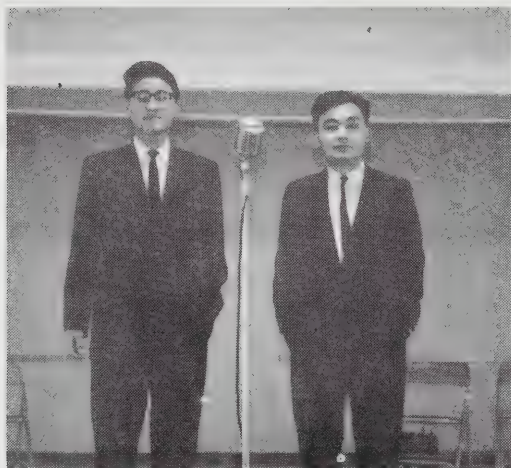

SCIENCE COUNTDOWN

The eighth grade students pictured above had an opportunity to prove their knowledge of Science this year when Briscoe participated in the Science Countdown contest sponsored by the Lowell Technological Institute. While Briscoe did not win a place in the regional awards, Briscoe can be proud of the above students who won the Briscoe finals.

Educational Activities

SOCIAL STUDIES SPECIAL PROGRAMS

DURING the past year, members of the various social studies classes had the opportunity to broaden their knowledge and supplement their learning by trips, discussions, and speakers from other countries. Also, teachers and pupils worked together to help the librarian review a great many books on social studies in order to add to our school library.

The first of these activities was a trip to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. There, those who went saw and had explained to them relics of ancient China. Later, we were pleased to receive at an assembly two talented speakers from China, whose speeches helped us to understand the country further. While we studied India, a fascinating Indian speaker delivered a speech on his country and its many aspects.

Concerning our own country, there were several cracker barrel discussions (a cracker barrel discussion is one in which the members sit around a barrel of crackers as they did in the day of the country store and wood stove to debate upon political questions). The first, an extremely interesting one, involved the New Hampshire Primaries. The second and third took up the issue of the Civil Rights Bill and some of the points were those of jobs, states rights, and the legality of filibusters.

A formal debate on the merits of Washington versus those of Lincoln was presented at an assembly by a group of people in the auditorium. This was excellently produced and the members of the two teams presented their facts and arguments well.

We feel that these activities have greatly helped us in our study of the world today, and hope that they will be continued for other classes to enjoy.

MODERN MATH

Traditional mathematics has worn a new face this year at Briscoe. New approaches and new methods of teaching and learning math have made math a more enjoyable subject than ever before. The result has been an increase of interest among Briscoe students in the math of the world around them. Computers and electronics developments are now understandable to Briscoe students, and the many projects displayed by the mathematics department this year is a good measure of this new interest and understanding.

Another such measure is the achievement of Briscoe students in Mathematics Fair held at the Masconomet Regional High School. Pictured below are Nancy Tarlow and Louise Podgers whose project "Optical Illusions" won the first place North Shore Regional Award for ninth grade students. Two eighth grade students also won first place in that grade's contest — Fred Douglas and Tom Dailey with their project on how to survey land, entitled "Stop, Look, and Survey."

But most important about the new math that has come to Briscoe are the facts that more math can be taught to students at an earlier age and that less memory and more thought is now involved in learning math.

GOODBYE JIMMY!

MICKEY rolled over in his bed and stretched. "What Day is it today? Oh yes, it's Monday and Daddy goes to work today." He climbed out of his bed and put on his slippers and bathrobe. It was too early for Mommy to get his breakfast yet because she was busy with baby brother David, who had just awakened. Mickey decided to play with his blocks and build a new type of building that he'd never made before. He became so engrossed in his construction work that he didn't even notice that there was someone else in the room with him.

"Hi!" said a voice coming from the direction of Mike's bed. Mikey turned around, quite surprised to find that he had company.

"Hi!" said Mike cautiously.

"Don't be afraid of me, I'm going to be your friend," said the voice, which upon careful observation Mike saw belonged to a little boy, or was it a man? He was only about the size of Baby David, but he could talk and he looked just like a little man. He was dressed in green.

"I'm a leprechaun," said the little man before Mikey even had a chance to ask him.

"What's a leprechaun?" asked Mike.

"I'm a perfect example. I don't see why you have to ask. What you should have said is 'What's your name?' then I would have told you and a lot of talk could have been eliminated."

"Oh," said Mike, who was quite overcome by this talkative little thing that had suddenly appeared in his room. "What is your name?"

"My name's Jimmy."

Just then Mikey's mother came in to make the bed. "Good morning, Dear. You're up early today and you've built something with your blocks already!"

"Hi, Mom! Look at Jimmy! He's a leprechaun and he's my friend."

"What did you say, Darling?"

"He's a leprechaun, Mom, a real leprechaun."

"Mikey, what are you talking about? Do you mean that you have a leprechaun in that building you just made?"

"No, he's there on the bed. Can't you see him?"

"No, I don't see him. Mike, I think you are just teasing me. Now get dressed and go eat your breakfast which is on the table. Then you may go out and ride your bicycle in the driveway if you'd like to."

Mikey obeyed his mother with Jimmy at his heels. But he didn't dare speak to him until they got outside. "Jimmy," he said when they got to the garage, "my mother doesn't think you're real so we'll have to be quiet when she's around because I don't want her to send you away. I don't have anyone to play with because all our neighbors live far away. Last winter I went to kindergarten but there were just girls in my class. Now it's summer and I don't have anyone at all so please stay with me. You could sleep in my closet. I'll get some of Davey's blankets for you.

Meanwhile, Mikey's mother was taking the wet clothes out to hang on the line. She paused because she thought she heard voices in the garage. She looked in quietly and there was Mikey talking to himself. She moved away quickly so he wouldn't notice her, but she was puzzled. That night she mentioned Mikey's behavior to her husband.

"Dick, Michael has been acting very strangely today. He has been out most of the day and you know this is unusual because mostly he stays in his room and plays with his blocks. Also I've caught him talking to himself several times today. This morning he even told me that he had a leprechaun in his room and heaven knows where he ever heard about leprechauns."

"Oh, Anna, don't worry about it. Whatever it is it will pass in a few days. Meanwhile he's getting some fresh air."

But week after week went by and Mikey continued to act strangely, or so his mother thought, but he was happy and so, for that matter, was Jimmy. One morning Mikey's mother went into his room when he was just waking up.

"Mikey, guess what? Tomorrow you begin school. You'll be my big first grader and go to school on a bus.

"Oh, Mom, I've been so busy with Ji--- I mean I've been so busy that I forgot about school. The summer went so quickly. Oh, Mom, I don't want to go to school."

Later in the day Mikey explained in detail to Jimmy that he'd have to go to school the next day. Jimmy told him not to feel bad and encouraged him by telling him that he'd go with him for the first day at least.

Mikey woke up early the next morning. He and Jimmy got ready and ate breakfast, then he kissed his mother goodbye. He and Jimmy walked to the bus stop together. They got on the bus with all the other children and Mikey became very shy and quiet. He wasn't afraid because Jimmy was with him to keep him company, but it was strange to be with so many children like himself. By recess time all of Mikey's shyness was gone. He loved school. He had met several boys and they all had quickly become friends. In fact, Mikey had almost forgotten about Jimmy, who was patiently following him around. The bell rang and recess was over. Mike began to go back into school with his friends when he heard a voice

"Mikey!"

"Oh, Jimmy, come on! We have to get back into school."

"Mikey, I can't. I have to go now."

"Go? Where are you going? Don't be mad at me because I didn't play with you."

"I'm not mad, Mikey, but I have to go about my work. I've enjoyed these many weeks with you but all good things must come to an end and I have much to do."

"No, Jimmy!" cried Mikey, almost in tears.

"Go, Mikey, and goodbye."

"Michael, recess is over. Come into the school this minute," called the teacher

Mikey ran to the door of the schoolhouse and turned before he went in, "Goodbye, Jimmy!"

He looked out of the window when he got inside, but the schoolyard was empty. "Goodbye, Jimmy!" he whispered.

That night after Mikey's mother had tucked her little boy into bed, she was going through his pockets before putting his pants in the wash. She pulled out something small and green. Upon examining it, she found that it was just a clover, but to others, such as leprechauns, it was not just a clover but rather it was a shamrock and a symbol of good luck.

THE WALL

Last summer I sailed the ocean blue;
I went to Germany and Berlin, too.
I saw a wall so gray and tall,
And people that looked so sad and small.

They watched by day; they watched by night;
They waited and waited for the flight.
Would they come over? Would they come under?
They could only wait and watch and wonder.

— CAROL BURNS, 9-6

NIGHT OF THE BATTLE

On a wint'ry night of an age long ago,
We quietly lay and observed our foe.
Defeated, bedraggled, and beaten so,
They nursed their wounds by the campfire's glow.

Truly a vict'ry we had won,
We'd fired and charged and watched them run.
Yet now, in the hours when there was no sun,
They sat checking their powder, each cleaning his gun.

Though battered and shaken, the day before,
They'd prepared their forces, to settle the score.
Overlooking the corpses, blood and gore,
They soon stood ready on the opposite shore.

Now, in the half-light, as morning nears,
Our seargent, exultant but weary, appears.
Says he, "My men, let us have no fears,
"This army is the finest in all the spheres."

Yet we, in the face of the coming fight,
Wondered if standing was better than flight.
For we knew that the army we faced that night,
Now had a thousand times our might.

An army that stands after burning defeat,
That picks up the pieces, and doesn't retreat,
Has passed through fire, hail, and sleet;
In its future losing is obsolete.

— THOMAS ALLEN, 7-2

THE CURSE OF 9-9

Many centuries ago in the age of the Beatles there existed a strange tribe which could have happened only by accident. It was through the intervention of the gods that this tribe, known as Div. 9-9, ascended to new unheard of depths of stupidity. When mortals stray from the gods there can only be retribution.

Many sacrileges were committed by 9-9. One was the crime of complete, utter, unending stupidity. Their laziness was so great that it would have put to shame the lack of efforts of an immobilized tree stump. The male athletes of this division established an unbroken record of various excuses for avoiding physical exertion of any kind in gymnastics.

Mighty Chetarius, king of the gods of Briscane, called an assembly to deal with 9-9. Regana, the scientific Wizard of Oz, suggested that they be subjected to cleaning out test tubes for ever. It was Gilly of the Iron Hand who suggested that they be banished to the land of Eternally Boiling Gum; this idea was also rejected. Gradios thought that they should be forced to count the grains of sand on a beach, to make an equation showing the relationship between the large grains and the small grains and then to square the results. But in the end it was Chetarius who decided their punishment.

"I'm gonna fix them," said Chetarius mightily.

"You are going to fix them," said his magic steed Rosey. Rosey was very grammatical.

It was then that Chetarius decided on 9-9's punishment. The gods would assume the place of 9-9's teachers and they would mete out suffering to the division of misfits.

This is the story of their woeful fate and of how they came to be held out to the world as an example of ignorance incarnate.

— RONALD SMITH, 9-9

TIME

A finger flicks a tiny bug,
A hand picks up a stone,
A tiny foot kicks at a stick,
And then it's time to go.

The finger, hand, and tiny foot
Were chased away by time;
And though they'll ne'er return again,
This cannot be a crime.

For life goes on and time goes on
For endless hours and days;
Another finger, foot, and hand
Will soon begin to play.

THE RAILSPLITTER

Tall and lanky, strong and good,
Out of Illinois, and the pioneer wood,
Born in a cabin, in 1809,
Amidst the mockingbirds' call, and the gnarled old pine.

Pioneer born, and pioneer bred,
Upon his shoulders, a gifted head.
Abraham Lincoln, the backwoods boy,
The log-cabin president from Illinois.

Splitting rails for a pair of jeans,
Or on a river trip to New Orleans,
In his youth he traveled far and wide,
Life the riff-raff swept before a raging tide.

As the railsplitting lawyer, his fame it grew.
He was loyal and honest, as everyone knew.
He debated with Douglas, for humanity's sake.
On the issue of slavery, with his name at stake.

Then the country called, he was needed they said,

As the country's president, the government's head.
And Lincoln answered in his gentle way,
"I'll come if I'm needed," he seemed to say.

For four long years the country warred,
But Lincoln across that river did ford.
And the country, under his strong-willed mind,
Came together, and began to bind.

Then John Wilkes Booth, in a maddened craze,
Ended Lincoln's earthly days.
But Lincoln's figure, good and strong,
Stays with the country through right and wrong.

O Lincoln's life can't be denied,
A man with heaven in him, deep inside.
He carried the country through it awfullest days,
And died the victor, in a thousand ways.

TALE OF A TROLL

ONCE upon a time in a far-off forest, in a far-off city, in a far-off land lived a troll named Nunkie Pooh. Now, Nunkie Pooh was a very special troll. He had magical powers, not unlike other trolls, but he used these powers to help people, not to play tricks on them as some naughty trolls liked to do.

Nunkie was a very small troll for his age. He just turned 138 years old, which is rather young for a troll. In fact, his bright orange hair was longer than he was. His big green eyes and his pushed-in nose were his outstanding features.

Nunkie Pooh lived in an old oak tree apartment house. His small, comfy home was the upper left branch on the second bough.

One day as Nunkie was sitting in his little brown rocking chair reading the Trollian Times, he was interrupted by a voice. It was a voice that expressed worry, sorrow, and despair. Nunkie peeked out his knot hole and there, sitting under the tree, was a young handsome boy. He was dressed in the fashion of a farmer's son and had neat, clean features. Nunkie sensed that something was wrong, so he jumped out and floated down beside the boy.

"Well, young man, what can I do for you?"

The boy looked around, then his eyes met Nunkie. He jumped up and stuttered, "Who-oo a-are y-you?"

"Just call me Nunkie."

"Er, my name is Nivla."

"Well, what's your problem, my boy?"

"Well, you see, sir, my sweetheart has been captured by the wicked witch Garget."

"So don't just stand there - let's get going." So, off they went.

Meanwhile, in the castle, the wicked Garget was sitting in her chair taking it easy while Farello, Nivla's sweetheart, was working her hands to the bone. You could tell that this witch was a mean one because she could have done all the work with her powers.

By this time our heroes were at the entrance of the castle. Well, they were supposed to be at the entrance. You see, there weren't any doors or windows.

"Well," asked Nivla, "What now?"

"We'll just make ourselves as small as ants and crawl through a crack," replied Nunkie, and so they did.

When they came into the room, there in one chair, slept the witch; in another chair slept Farello; and right in between slept an anteater.

"Now, why couldn't she be like any normal witch and have a cat?" questioned Nivla.

"She's a non-conformist."

They tiptoed across the room. When they got to the witch Nunkie tied her shoelaces and changed the anteater into a rabbit.

"That's for a safe measure," said Nunkie.

When they reached Farello, Nunkie turned her into an ant too. She was so glad to see them that she let out an ant-sized peep. Garget awoke!

"Women are always flapping their lips," muttered Nunkie.

Garget started to get up but tripped. She bellowed to her anteater to get them, but, of course, a rabbit doesn't chase ants.

The three ants scrambled to safety.

"We don't know how to thank you," Nivla and Farello said.

"Don't mention it," replied Nunkie.

Then Farello bent down and gave him a kiss.

"I repeat, women are always flapping their lips!"

THE GOOD SHIP BRISCOE

The Good Ship Briscoe lifted anchor again September 5, 1963. We will be sailing through many lands such as: Math, Biology, Social Studies, English, Languages, and Current Events.

When every girl and boy reaches maturity and they look back and see how much this ship and its crew helped them in their future they will agree that it would be wonderful if they could take another voyage.

Briscoe's log is filled with many interesting plays and contests for the passengers, because everyone at Briscoe likes to participate and do so with much cooperation.

Looking back through many of Briscoe's magazines entitled Briscoe Briefs you can see that the passengers were educated by an outstanding crew.

The Good Ship Briscoe by the end of the year will, as usual, reach the end of a pleasant voyage, the Sea of Success. With all ninth grade passengers ready for a big jump, the jump into high school, then the crew will be welcoming a new passenger list and all the new crew members that are joining our staff.

Now Briscoe will be moving to a new spot — the high school will be called Briscoe.

— DEBORAH MARSHALL, 7-3

BRISCOE SPIRIT

Three years of not just learning,
Three years of not just school,
Three years of more than teachers,
But three years of Golden Rule.

It's that kind of spirit,
The kind you never see;
It's used for something different,
And comes from you and me.
It's used at all our football games,
You'll see it everywhere;
And when you enter Briscoe,
You feel it always there.

It's that Briscoe spirit!
Consumed by you and me;
And when you enter Briscoe,
That's how it ought to be.

— CHARLES LIPORTO, 9-6

NIGHTTIME ON THE BEACH

Dark and dismal was the night,
Nobody, but nobody, was in sight.
The soft wind hummed its cheerful song,
The bells in the church began to dong,
Full was the moon, warm was the air,
A quiet night for those who stare.
Suddenly a wind approached from the trees,
And a thundering storm raced through the seas.
The waves grew bigger, the air grew cold —
These remind us of stories that were untold.

— LINDA LIPSON, 9-8

THE MONSTER FISH

I cast my fly upon the lake,
And sure enough a fish took the bait.
'Twas no ordinary fish on my line
But a monster of tremendous size.
I remember well that day how he fought —
He twisted and squirmed and tied my line in knots —
The battle went on for an hour or more.
His body 'twas big as mine, and his head as big as a boar's
'Twas a proud moment when he became my prize —
Six feet two inches long 'twas his size.
Now that I've caught this fish monster —
It wouldn't be right to kill such a gallant fighter
In any pond, lake or sea —
A fish like this deserves to be free.

— WAYNE WENTWORTH, 9-3

THE SEA

As I sit on a rock looking out on the sea,
I can see a mist forming from its breast,
And outlines of islands in this treacherous sea.
And as I look at them
They see as lonely as I.
It is getting dark now as I can see
The color of the sky is now pink and cream.
And as I look high in the air
I see the sea gull floating there
Heading for those islands fair.
Then! There's a roar! so loud and clear
Making it known that the sea is feared,
Letting you know its danger is near
With its dark blue waters and white, white caps growing high,
And you know there's anger in this air so high
With the dark clouds moving o'er the sea
Just waiting for a chance to spring on me
With its mighty wing and waves so high.
But I don't care. I'm not afraid;
For, whatever I do God's always there.
Now as I look around I see
The branches of trees bowing down to me.
This sight so grand, the air so fresh
Midst boiling foam, a glorious sea.
And I know from this that God is with me.
And that's where I'll be — at the sea.

IS THE UNITED STATES ALONE IN VIOLENCE?

FRIDAY, November 22 — a day of tragedy.
One American out of 190,000,000 shot down the President of the United States.

The people of Europe were amazed that such violence could occur in such a democratic nation. The leader of the United States of America, a country where its citizens enjoyed great freedom and prosperity, had been assassinated!

The United States is not alone in violence, it has been seen throughout the countries of the world.

In France many attempts have been made to try to assassinate President Charles de Gaulle. Bombs, gunshots, and riots are all alleged attempts to kill. Since the French Revolution, France has gone through one political upheaval after another. Many have been killed, THERE STILL IS VIOLENCE.

In Germany there was the Hitler era. German Nazis systematically got rid of six million Jews, and committed numerous atrocities among the people of countries they had conquered in World War II. Hitler rose to his power through violence and bloodshed. Now, in Germany, terror is the weapon. Guards shoot down people who try to escape in West Germany. There are uprisings and executions. THERE IS STILL VIOLENCE IN GERMANY.

In Russia, assassinations, killings, and terror have been a way of living for years. Despite the denial of terrorism by the current Soviet leader, Krushchev has not brought an end to terror or violence in Russia. THERE STILL IS VIOLENCE IN RUSSIA.

Italians freely admit that their land has had terror and violence. Even in this modern age there is terror. One of their leaders was assassinated in public view by his own people. In Italy people STILL LIVE BY VIOLENCE. In Europe, in Africa, in Asia, in America — Wherever people dwell — there is violence.

We young Americans hold the future of our land in our hands. With God's help we can rid the world of violence and make this nation and the world, a home of peace for all.

— RHONDA DUPLESSIS, 7-2

AS AN EXAMPLE

John F. Kennedy, thirty-fifth president of the United States of America, is dead. I shall not even attempt to narrate the facts of that unfortunate episode — they do not need retelling. A man's death never really reflects his life.

The flood of remembrance, of sympathy, of sorrow, following the president's death, to me seemed an inspiration. In its time of direst need a nation had borne the shock and recovered. The services, special ceremonies, and general reactions of the nation were a credit to America. But something was missing. Something important. Something big — the spirit of Kennedy himself.

A man dies three ways — in body, in mind, in spirit. John F. Kennedy is dead in body and mind, but his spirit has a chance yet to live. Naming things after Kennedy cannot do this, neither can continual quoting of his speeches and policies. Only taking his life as an example, a creed to live by, can keep his spirit alive.

There is a passage in the Bible, I don't know quite where, that states, "The Lord works for good in every evil . . ." There is nothing good in the slaying of a president. But in the aftermath there can be as much good as there is evil in the deed itself — if the public the great, unknowing public, takes advantage of the example it has received.

The president's council in its report "Goals for Americans", could have added one more thing — each American citizen molding his life, and so the nation, after such men as John F. Kennedy. When and if such a spiritual rise as this takes place, I am sure America will know it.

— THOMAS ALLEN, 7-2

A LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

DEAR READERS,

FROM the beginning of the year, when the publication of the Briefs seemed a very long time off, to the day you receive your copy, many people were included in the effort to make Briscoe Briefs a yearbook worthy of its name. They spent long hours after school, laboring on the many jobs necessary to this magazine. They faced its problems, its tribulations, and also its rewards. They did not ask for recognition which they more than deserve.

We are indebted to all members of the staff, but I would like to enumerate some of the committees and individuals who helped through the year. Once or more a week, every week since the beginning of school, the art staff has met to plan the yearbook's cover and illustrations. Our photography staff has provided us with the many candid shots, as well as pictures of assemblies and displays, which dot the Briefs. The silent department, our business staff, has provided us with steady management on the financial end. Of great importance have been your contributions of poems, short stories, and editorials which appear in the literary section.

This winter, when our small research staff collected historical material about Briscoe, they searched many areas for information, and found that the most valuable source was the Beverly Historical Society. The Society librarian helped them to compile the many notes they needed. Another aid was the information supplied by Mr. Battis, Mr. Jones, Mr. Foley, and Mr. Cronin. Finally, my appreciation goes to Miss Rosengard, Briefs Advisor; Miss Leighton, Art Advisor; and Mrs. Parks, Business Advisor.

Thank you,
